Alex helps individuals and businesses work through financial challenges and legal disputes. His practice includes guiding clients through bankruptcy matters and resolving conflicts related to money owed, contracts, and business relationships. Whether someone is dealing with debt, trying to protect their assets, or facing a lawsuit, he works to find practical solutions that fit their needs.

He has experience supporting people through personal bankruptcy and understands the stress that financial issues can bring. That background helps him approach each case with empathy and a clear plan.

Earlier in his career, Alex worked with inventors and researchers to create agreements for sharing ideas and building partnerships. He also helped students start their own businesses, giving him insight into the legal needs of entrepreneurs and small business owners.

Clients appreciate his thoughtful approach and ability to explain complex legal issues in a way that's easy to understand.
