Easton focuses his practice on private client planning, corporate governance, and tax law. Easton works with a range of clients helping them: craft plans that align with their long-term strategy, protect their assets, and provide tax savings. He devotes himself to working alongside his clients to ensure their needs are met.

Easton has experience with individual, estate, and business tax issues. He has also drafted estate plans for families with a wide variety of needs. Over time, Easton has become well-versed with the intricacies of fiduciary duties and corporate affairs. He attended the University of Louisville for undergraduate and received his J.D. from the University of Notre Dame Law School.
