Chicago, IL
Tel: (312) 837-4304

Jessica concentrates her practice on commercial and financial services litigation, helping businesses and financial institutions navigate and resolve disputes efficiently. She represents banks, credit unions, and other financial entities in matters before both state and federal courts.

Her work spans all phases of litigation, from drafting motions and pleadings to managing complex discovery and preparing cases for trial. Jessica also handles dispositive motions and works closely with clients to develop strategies that align with their business goals.

In addition to her litigation experience, she is familiar with issues involving contract disputes, lender liability, and regulatory compliance, giving her a broad perspective on challenges faced by financial institutions. Clients value her practical approach and commitment to achieving favorable outcomes.
