With a thorough understanding of estate and trust law, Kristin represents a variety of individuals in estate planning and probate and trust administration matters.

Focusing largely on the planning side, she leverages a practical, real-world approach to helping clients minimize the complications associated with the transfer of wealth. Understanding that estate planning sometimes involves an emotional component and complex family dynamics, Kristin tailors her approach to each client, quickly discerning their goals and laying out a strategy to help them get there. By building relationships with clients, she is also able to advise them on other matters, including general business needs, business and LLC formation and implementing business succession plans.

Building on her past experience with a large accounting firm, Kristin also advises closely-held businesses, charitable organizations and family foundations on a variety of tax and business matters.

Beyond her practice, she enjoys writing and in 2012 co-authored a children's book called "The Notre Dame Spirit," which highlights the picturesque and legendary South Bend campus through the eyes of a first-time visitor.
