Scott concentrates his practice on commercial litigation, helping businesses resolve disputes efficiently and effectively. His work often involves complex matters such as contract disagreements, arbitration, and payer disputes. Clients appreciate his ability to break down complicated issues into clear, actionable solutions and his commitment to finding practical strategies that protect their interests.

With experience advising companies on transactions and compliance, Scott understands how to anticipate potential challenges and provide guidance that keeps operations running smoothly. He is known for his thorough research, quick analysis, and ability to deliver answers that partners and clients can use immediately.

Scott works with a wide range of clients—from local and regional businesses to large national companies—and approaches every matter with reliability and responsiveness. Whether preparing for a presentation or addressing an urgent issue, he is proactive and focused on achieving results.

Outside of his practice, Scott enjoys playing tennis and spending time with his family.
