As both a respected state legislator and an accomplished litigator, Bill brings unique experience and perspective to clients. He has more than 40 years of experience handling a wide range of matters, ranging from antitrust proceedings to franchise and distribution law. As a long-time leader in supporting criminal and civil justice reform, he is able to draw upon his knowledge to help clients navigate through complex regulations and resolve disputes efficiently.

He has practiced antitrust law for more than 40 years and was recognized in 2014 by Best Lawyers® as Southwest Ohio's Antitrust "Lawyer of the Year." Bill served on the Board of Governors of the Antitrust Section of the Ohio State Bar Association and has litigated antitrust cases in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Florida. While serving in the State General Assembly, he successfully amended Ohio's antitrust statutes and has represented numerous nationally and internationally known corporations in counseling or litigating antitrust matters.

Bill's leadership abilities and knowledge of the justice system have also enabled him to become a valued leader in the State of Ohio, where he currently serves as majority leader in the Ohio House of Representatives. Previously, he served in the Ohio House for seven years, where he became majority whip, before joining the Ohio Senate in 2007 and then returning to the Ohio House in 2017. He has helped lead efforts to reform sentencing laws, reduce prison overcrowding, eliminate barriers to employment for non-violent offenders and enhance penalties for violent offenders. He also was an integral figure in helping usher in Ohio's sweeping tort reform, which helped transform the state's business landscape. His work led to him receiving the prestigious U.S. Chamber Institute for Legal Reform State Legislative Achievement Award in 2013. In 2019, Best Lawyers® named him Best Lawyer in Southwest Ohio for municipal litigation.

Experience

Counseled Leading ULT Freezer Company through Merger

We counseled our client, Stirling Ultracold, an innovative developer and manufacturer of ultra-low temperature (ULT) freezers for life science and biopharma research, through its merger with BioLife Solutions, Inc., a developer focused on bioproduction devices used in cell and gene therapies. The all-stock merger was in excess of $230 million.

Stirling's CEO saw the potential for increased demand for the company's freezers during the COVID-19 pandemic as the freezers were a direct competitor to dry ice used in storing the COVID-19 vaccine. Merging with BioLife enabled Stirling to execute an aggressive strategic plan marketing and selling its freezers. Dinsmore served as the company's general counsel since 2019, and our team of attorneys brought experience in mergers and acquisitions, labor, insurance, and life sciences, all of which was necessary to fully understand and address the company's specialized needs. We counseled our client through the merger while simultaneously defusing challenges. Our team's collective experience enabled Stirling's executives to address the company's short-term needs while also achieving its long-term goal.

"The entire team at Dinsmore was, by far, the best engagement I have had in the 15-plus strategic transactions I have done throughout my career," said previous Stirling Ultracold CEO Dusty Tenney, now COO and president at BioLife. "Their responsiveness, engagement, availability and deal leadership were extraordinary from LOI to closing."
